

GINK AND DINK. IT TOOK MORE NERVE THAN GINK COULD SUMMON.

SPORT Snap-Shots

HALF THE BATTLE.
There's plenty in the game of life
Who never baste the ball.
Who never even get to first
Nor cross the plate at all.
It's not for all to thrill the throng.
To capture every fly.
And well he played who wins but this

"He made a pretty try."
SOME FIGHT AHEAD.
It's going to be a neat little battle
when Willie Ritchie and Leach Cross

get together, which will probably be in the neighborhood of Thanksgiving.
Ritchie thinks he deserves a rest and doesn't care to work very hard again before November. However when the mill is pulled tight fans may be pre-tially well assured of seeing considerable of a scrap. Both boys led all the way in their fourth of July fights and completely had it on their adversaries.
Rivers showed a little more against Ritchie than Anderson against Cross but Ritchie won the less decisively. Johnny Griffith the Akron phenom, is probably the only other lad in line for the title and Johnny will have to pick up a little more about the ring game before tackling such a seasoned old vet.
and expert as Leach Cross or as powerful and crafty a fighter as Willie Ritchie.

STILL HAS HOPES.
Frank Chance, the great P. L., is confident that his bunch won't end the race in the bottom booth, anyway.
"We started out rather weakly," said Frank, "and it looked rather dismal at first. The team didn't show much hitting strength and the pitching staff seemed sort of anemic, but I've made a few changes and will soon make more, and so I hope to see my boys take a brace." Chance, who has seen years of service in the National league, was asked point blank—just like that—whether he thought the National league was any faster than the American league or what. "I don't see a lot of difference," said Frank.
"They even up about the same, altho
I think the American league pitchers are a little classier than the National league twirlers, though aside from that there's little to choose."

FIRST BIGGEST PART OF HIM.
Joe Wood has the largest hand in the big leagues. It is well shaped and graceful with long fingers, but has tremendous strength and is joined only to his arm with a regular whale of a wrist. It is simply a huge hand and muscles surrounding the small bones
at the junction of the hand and arm.
His marvelous wrist makes it possible for Wood to throw his "snap ball" without wearing himself out. In the while he has been with the Red Sox five years—Joe has filled out and developed wonderfully and he is now only twenty-three.

C. E. Snyder won the honors as a marksman at the practice shoot held by the Janesville Gun Club at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, breaking forty-six clay-pigeons out of a possible fifty. Next Friday the club will begin the shoot for the DuPont trophy. The scores yesterday were as follows:
Out of a possible fifty shots H. W.
McNamara broke 33, W. Conroy 40, A.

R. Dean made 16, and L. Drake 18.

BURTON TO COMMAND LIPTON'S SHAMROCK IN NEXT YACHT RACE

Fourth Contestant for America's Cup to be Piloted by Amateur—Experienced in Racing.
[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, July 12.—Sir Thomas Lipton's choice of the amateur yachtman, William P. Burton, to command and pilot his fourth Shamrock in the 1914 races for the America's cup, probably will be regarded by many yachtsmen as a daring and risky innovation. In all previous races for the historic trophy, the competing yachts have been handled by professional skippers, and it is generally assumed that a professional yachtman must know more about the game than an amateur.

It is not generally realized here,
however, that far more opportunities are at the disposal of the English amateur yachtsman to obtain practice than exist for his American prototype, however keen and enthusiastic he may be. Because of the great distances between important ports along the Atlantic coast, a yachtsman has opportunities to participate in the races of but a few clubs.

In England, where distances between yachting centres are so much shorter, dates are so arranged that a yacht by visiting various ports in succession, may engage in as many as three or more races in the course of a season. That is probably the reason why a New York or Boston yacht has a chance to take part in it. If not satisfied with the abundance of races in home waters,
the British yachtsman also can engage in some of the races organized by continental clubs.

Mr. Burton began his yachting career in 1888. He always elected to sail his own boat and for some years contented himself with small boats, but for the last fifteen or sixteen years he has owned and raced larger craft. Altogether he has sailed in about a thousand races. It is safe to say that there are few if any professional American yachting skippers who have had anything like so extended an experience in yacht racing.

By the best English judges he is regarded as the cleverest helmsman, either amateur or professional, in English waters. He has repeatedly raced his yacht against those sailed
by the most famous English professionals and has beaten them. In 1911, sailing his 10-metre Octavia against yachts of the same rating steered by professionals, he finished the season at the top of the class, with 37 prizes to his credit out of 57 races.

Mr. Burton is a member of several yacht clubs and vice-commander of the Royal Harwich Yacht Club, which confers on him the distinction of being ex-officio an honorary member of the New York Yacht Club. He is a wealthy man and with ample means to indulge in his sporting proclivities which are not confined to yacht racing. In the county of Suffolk, where he resides, he has hunted for many seasons with his own pack of hounds.

Seventeen Straight Victories.
While the seventeen straight victories scored by the Yale Varsity nine this season was a rare feat, stretch of playing, there remains no question regarding the fact that it was not an intercollegiate baseball record. Parke Davis, the Princeton athletic statistician, has shown that the Tiger team of 1897 scored sevteen consecutive victories. Now comes William F. Garcelon, graduate treasurer of the Harvard Athletic Association, who goes Mr. Davis one better. Mr. Garcelon has prepared a record of the Harvard Varsity nine of 1885, which shows that the Crimson team won twenty-six out of twenty-seven games played that season, ending with a straight run of nine test games.

The team, which was captained by Samuel E. Winslow, now congressman from the Worcester district, Massachusetts, consisted of the following players:
Catcher, H. T. Allen, '86; pitcher,
E. H. Nichols, '86; first base, W. W.
Willard, '87; second base, Clarence W. Smith, '86; third base, H. C. Beaman, '85; shortstop, F. B. Wiestlin,
'87; left field, George W. Foster, '87;
center field, Walter H. Egerly, '86; right field, change pitcher and captain, Samuel E. Winslow, '85; F. M.
Tilden, '87; E. S. Litchfield, '87, A. D.
Clatfin, '86, manager.

During the twenty-seven game season Harvard scored 250 runs to opponents' 88. Fifteen of the twenty-seven games were won by scores running into double figures, while Tufts was the only team to secure a total victory in a straight game. Harvard defeated Princeton four times;
Yale twice; Brown three times;
Tufts twice; Amherst twice; Dartmouth twice; Williams and Trinity once each.

Ready for Sculling Match.
The final details for the world's championship sculling match between Ernest Barry, holder, and Harry Barce, challenger, have been completed, and the race will be rowed July 21, weather permitting. The famous four-mile 400-yard championship course on the Thames river, London, will be the scene of the struggle for individual honors.
Both the champion and his Australian challenger are completing their training work, and on the showing made Barry is quoted as 5 to 4 to win the championship cup and a side stake of $5,000 goes to the winner.

The Putney to Mortlake course on which the race will be rowed is the longest of all world's championship courses. The African Zambesi course is 2 1/2 miles; the Paramatta and Warrganui courses of Australia being 3 miles 330 yards and 3 1/4 miles, respectively.

The history of this championship over dates back to 1873, and since then there have been six or three races for the title. During this period of fifty odd years the greatest professional scullers of the world have in turn held the title five times; E. Hanlon won the title five times; E. Hanlon six times; Beach six; Towns five and Arnst five, while many other scullers came in for a short possession of championship honors. Barry, the present champion, won his title from Arnst on July 28, 1912, after the latter had defeated both Barry and Pearce during 1910 and 1911.

EXPECT FAST GAME SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Janesville Cardinals Will Have Hard
Time Defeating Oregon Sunday Afternoon.

Either "Cuddy" Butters or "Gan"
Howard will pitch for the Janesville Cardinals in their contest Sunday afternoon against the Oregon city team. Either of these slab artists is capable of letting down the visitors with a few hits and if Butters is selected the local fans can concede no show for the village team.

A fast air fight game is expected
as the Oregon team will come to meet the locals with an undefeated record and the Cards have a few sculps hung on their belt. The Cardinals will have their strongest men in the field as Porter will be back on the initial sack relieving Neir who will be shifted to center field. "Andy" Connell has returned from Pamyria and will either play third or in the right garden. Just enough of proper confidence has been given the Cardinals by their victory over the Rockford Griolos and every player has the fighting spirit that wins ball games.

The Cardinal lineup will be as follows: Wilson, c.; Butters or Howard,
p.; Connell, 3 b.; Sullivan, 2b.; Ryan,
or Stewart, fielders.

MANY FEATURES ARE ON TODAY'S RETAIL MARKET
Red currants are showing themselves on today's market, and they are in fine shape for canning, or for making jelly. The price is very reasonable, considering that these currents are home-grown. Large, excellent oranges are also selling high but they are worth their price, especially at this time of year. Lemon-ons are just right, and are selling fast all of the time. The prices for the local retail market are as follows:

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

HEALTH is within our reach—it costs nothing—only the effort which soon grows into a pleasurable habit. Ask any doctor of any school if I am not right? Why not acquire the Health Habit? Here is the formula:

1. DEEP BREATHING in the open air with your mouth closed.

2. MODERATION IN EATING—simple dishes—Fletcher, etc.

3. EXERCISE at least an hour in the open, walking, working in the garden, playing with the children.

4. SLEEP EIGHT HOURS in a thoroughly ventilated room.

5. DRINK WATER between meals as much as you care to.

6. DON'T BOTHER to forgive your enemies—just forget them.

7. KEEP BUSY—it is a beautiful world, and we must and will and can leave it more beautiful than we found it.—The Fra.

It is an old saying that "health is wealth," and yet the fact, so true to the letter, is rarely appreciated. The most of us are fortunate enough to inherit a good constitution, and our early lives are so well environed that we may look forward to the fulfillment of allotted time without apprehension, yet the fact remains that many of us court disease and reap the reward before we pass the middle milestone.

The great God who planned for our creation, never interferes, in any arbitrary way, with our course of action. He permits us to sow our wild oats, and cultivate such habits as we will, without interference, and, whatever may be the outcome, there is never cause for complaint against fate or providence.

Statistics show that the percentage of deaths between the ages of forty and sixty is many times greater than between the ages of sixty and seventy. The reason why is not difficult to find, for many people, in the prime of life, persist in burning the candle at both ends, and the limit of endurance is taxed far beyond capacity.

The human body in normal condition is a perfect machine. It is built for service, and barring accident, should run without friction to the end of the journey. An old gentleman died, a time ago, at the ripe age of ninety-three. There was no sign of disease about him, and had he stayed by the old farm, which he left at the age of eighty-four, he might have been living yet. The rust of inactivity effected both mind and body, during the last few years of his life, and when the end came, the mechanism simply refused to work, because it had been idle so long.

Many of the diseases which annoy people of advanced age, develop from the same cause. They permit themselves to lose their grip on life, by withdrawing from its activities and soon become corroded, like a piece of idle machinery which is consigned to the scrap heap, after a few years of disuse.

The body stands the strain of idleness, better than the mind, for dyspepsia is a disease of the brain, more than of the stomach, and when the brain ceases to act, the mind gives up the worry habit, and the digestive organs soon become normal. That is the reason why people whose minds have ceased to act, usually live to a good old age.

The art of keeping young and preserving health is not developed through the drug habit or the family physician, but rather by keeping in the swim where the life current moves strong in the onward rush of active humanity.

Many people well along in years never take a vacation because they have no desire for that kind of rest. The height of enjoyment to them is found in the busy activities of every day life. The old desk at the office means employment, and the old kitchen is a pleasant reminder of other days. Enforced retirement to this class of people means the shortening of life and unhappy experiences.

One of the most pathetic sights, in connection with advancing age, is the pensioned retired engineer or conductor who aimlessly walks the streets, after a long and busy life on the road. With rare exception these men reach the age limit with faculties but slightly impaired. The old engine and the old train have become a part of their being, and when taken from them they feel that the last prop has been removed.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad is a notable exception for this company adopts the humanitarian plan of keeping its old men employed. One of its old conductors died, two years ago, after fifty years of service, and during the last few years of his life a helper was employed to make his work easier. James Dean, who died at Milwaukee a short time ago, was running a train through Janesville at the close of the war. Work and health go hand in hand to the journey's end.

But the seeds of disease, which undermine health and cause many people to drop out, before the race is half completed, are sown by careless habits during the early years of life. We are creatures of habit, and habits are products of early seed sowing.

The man who smokes or drinks, as a rule, cultivated a taste for stimulants back in the days to boyhood, when they were distasteful to him, for inherited appetite is not common. The first smoke is seldom a pleasant memory, and the first drink is as bad as a dose of castor oil. Were it not for the social habit, the number of drunkards would largely decrease, and smoking to excess would not be so prevalent. The cigarette has been named the "coffin nail," and it is. Cut it out, boys, and if you must smoke, smoke a pipe.

The snail is the target for the crusader, and people who focus their thought on a single evil, soon come to believe that prohibition, once established, will cure the ills of life and give us a race of stalwart humanity, sound in limb, vigorous in mind, and pure in heart.

But the most of us are not victims of the drink habit, or patrons of the saloon. Our intemperance is more refined, but more destructive, so far as health is concerned, for we all cultivate the food habit, with but little regard for consequences.

It is possible to keep tab on people who drink, from drink, and statistics are furnished freely on this class of suicides, but no record is made of the men and women who drop out of the ranks every day from diseases caused by intemperate eating.

If the good Lord made any mistake in planning our anatomy, it was in not supplying our stomachs with teeth. Many of us take the chances and treat our digestive organs as though they possessed unlimited capacity with a coffee mill at the seat of action. This is a mistaken notion, and the "fra's" second rule for health, is worth observing, for it means longer life, with freedom from many diseases which beset us.

Many of us are victims of the worry habit and a small dose of worry upsets digestion more readily than a cup of black coffee at midnight. Life is too short to spend any portion of it in needless worry. What we can't help isn't worth worrying about, and what we can help should be remedied, and save the disturbance.

The road to health is not a cow-path, but a broad highway where danger signals hang from every corner, and where derelicts line the roadway, as a warning to careless wayfarers.

More people are living on borrowed time today, than at any date in the world's history, because the laws of health are more closely observed in the home and school and because we are beginning to appreciate that a sound body, a clear mind, and a clean heart, are the three jewels, above price, choice but inexpensive, and within easy reach.

SELF HELP.

I once knew a boy whose hobby was mathematics. He had practically finished higher arithmetic when he was eleven and higher algebra when he was thirteen. One of his peculiarities was that he would permit no one to help him work a problem. He would not listen to a suggestion. He would fight or leave the room before he would permit a word to be said that would throw any light on the solution of his "sums." Perhaps he had not reasoned it out, but in his own heart he regarded the opportunity to work a problem as a privilege of which he was very jealous and with which no one might interfere.

That boy is now a successful man. I have followed his career with some interest and have seen him make his mark in every community in which he ever lived. He became known practically the nation over. He has kept the same traits, although expressed in different ways, that he manifested in his boyhood. He still insists in working out his own problems and thinking his own thoughts.

The boy who asks another to help him with his lessons is cheating himself. He is robbing himself of that much training and mental discipline. He is weakening his own faculties. He is handicapping himself for the problems that life itself will present when he has to make his own way and can get no one to help him in their solution.

It is as though a man were training for a race and would ask another to do his road work for him or as though one training for a boxing bout depended on another to exercise with the punching bag.

We cannot win success by proxy nor send a substitute into the battle of life. We have to go ourselves.

Stand on your own feet. Live your own life. Think out your own course. There are few if any questions that ever confront a human being that cannot be solved by that being if he thinks hard enough and deep enough and straight enough. All this is a matter of will power and of mental training. He must learn to concentrate until he can shut out everything in the world except the one question before him. He must be able to analyze it and to put it in its simplest statement. If he thinks long enough he will finally discover that to every problem there is a key and after that everything is simple.

In whatever situation you find yourself think your way out.

TEACHERS' TRAINING SCHOOL REPORT OUT

Statistics and Finances for Past Year Submitted to State Superintendent of Schools.

County Superintendent of Schools O. D. Antisdel has just forwarded to State Superintendent of Instruction and Finance a report of the Rock County Training School for Teachers. According to this report the total amount of receipts was $5,761.87, of which amount $2,000 was raised from county tax, $2,500 was received from the state, $450.00 from non-resident tuition fees, $17.45 from balance of books, $1.19 balance on hand, and $102.73 from all other sources. The total amount of expenditures for all purposes, including teachers' salaries and other expenses, was $5,262.88. Thirty-six pupils and three teachers were enrolled during the regular session, and there were seventeen graduates. Thirty-one have graduated since the school was organized. Twenty-five who attended school during the past year had taught previously.

Two hundred and thirty-eight teachers were required to teach the schools in Rock county under the supervision of the county superintendent during the school year ending June 30, 1913, when all schools were in session and at one time. Certification of this fact has been made to the state superintendent by Superintendent Antisdel under the provisions of Chapter 478 of the laws of 1905 in making application for the county's just proportion of the $9,000 set apart by law for the purpose of contributing a county teachers' institute fund. He also certified that each of these schools and their departments were maintained for a period of not less than eight months during the past year. Three schools under his supervision were closed, the children being transferred to other schools.

RAILROAD OFFICERS INSPECT NEW BRIDGE

Officials of Northwestern Road Pass Through Janesville on Inspection Tour.

Two special trains were in Janesville yesterday bearing a party of Northwestern railroad officials, who made an inspection of the Northwestern tracks from Madison to Jefferson Junction down the northern Wisconsin division to Janesville and Chicago. While in Janesville the party stopped at the cut-off and made a thorough inspection of the new railroad bridge. They spoke favorably of the work that had been done and pronounced the structure as being the finest in the state. The party consisted of the following men: W. D. Cantillon, general manager of the entire Northwestern system; R. H. Nash, superintendent of the road; L. S. Carroll, purchasing agent; H. C. Cheney, assistant general freight manager; W. D. Dailey, superintendent of the Wisconsin division; E. E. Nash, superintendent of the Madison division and F. D. Pendell, superintendent of the northern Wisconsin division. Nearly all of these officials were present at the big "safety first" rally held by the Wisconsin division safety committee held in Janesville on June 24.

W. D. Dailey and J. L. Tenney, roadmaster of the Wisconsin division, were in Janesville yesterday morning to show an increase over the year. The other members of the party on the incoming train at three o'clock.

VOLLEY BALL PLAYED WITH VIGOR FRIDAY

Matches at Jefferson School Playgrounds Attract Wide Attention—Webster and Jefferson Divide Honors.

Doings at the playgrounds were halted somewhat last evening by the showers which visited the city. But overlooking this fact, there was quite an attendance, and the result would have shown an increase over Thursday's average, had the rain not stopped the resorts from running.

There were 243 present at the Webster grounds, and almost that many at the Jefferson grounds.

Yesterday afternoon, two of the Webster volleyball teams met two of the Jefferson teams on the latter grounds, and each school won a game, making even in the fray. In the 12 to 15 age class the Jefferson won, while the 14 to 16 year old classic went to the Webster players. The lineup for the younger match was as follows:

Webster—Buell, Capt. F. Wetmore, B. Quigley, H. Butler, B. Watock, H. Ryan and Denning.

Jefferson—Clem, Jackman, Capt. M. Howard, H. Porter, D. Kimball, C. Connell, S. Schaller, G. McDermott, and C. Nuzum.

PRESBYTERIAN CHOR WILL ENJOY OUTING FOR A WEEK.

Members of the choir of the Presbyterian church left for Lake Delaue this morning where they will spend ten days as guests of P. F. Lewis and Prof. Taylor. Those who made up the party are: Wilma Saverhill, Fannie Victoria, Mabel Rustin, Louise Bennett, Mabel Rustin, Taylor, Arthur Schoof, Edwin Mead, Harry Loudon and Frank Blair.

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Output to be increased.

With the two new heads operating the output of the Amberg will be increased by half or more, and the pounds of copper annually. Selling at 15c a pound, the Amberg should earn $40 per share per annum on this production and every cent increase in selling price would increase earnings $5.40 per share.

Hundreds of men for work the copper country mines are coming in each week. Wednesday night about forty came to Calumet from Boston to go to work for the Calumet and Hecla. The Mass mine, in Ontario, son county, got in 80 men from Detroit and Pennsylvania points Monday and Tuesday nights. Others of the big mines here are bringing in men almost daily and the labor shortage is being overcome rapidly.

The Mohawk company has declared a semi-annual dividend of $2 a share, compared with $3 paid six months ago. Reduction in the selling price of copper resulted in the decreased dividend. No. 6 shaft of the Mohawk will begin shipping copper rock soon.

RAILROAD OFFICERS INSPECT NEW BRIDGE

Officials of Northwestern Road Pass Through Janesville on Inspection Tour.

Two special trains were in Janesville yesterday bearing a party of Northwestern railroad officials, who made an inspection of the Northwestern tracks from Madison to Jefferson Junction down the northern Wisconsin division to Janesville and Chicago. While in Janesville the party stopped at the cut-off and made a thorough inspection of the new railroad bridge. They spoke favorably of the work that had been done and pronounced the structure as being the finest in the state. The party consisted of the following men: W. D. Cantillon, general manager of the entire Northwestern system; R. H. Nash, superintendent of the road; L. S. Carroll, purchasing agent; H. C. Cheney, assistant general freight manager; W. D. Dailey, superintendent of the Wisconsin division; E. E. Nash, superintendent of the Madison division and F. D. Pendell, superintendent of the northern Wisconsin division. Nearly all of these officials were present at the big "safety first" rally held by the Wisconsin division safety committee held in Janesville on June 24.

W. D. Dailey and J. L. Tenney, roadmaster of the Wisconsin division, were in Janesville yesterday morning to show an increase over the year. The other members of the party on the incoming train at three o'clock.

NEW COMPOSITION IN STEEL RAILS

EXPERIMENTED ON
St. Paul Road Expends Huge Sum for New Copper-Steel Rails—See Large Demand for Copper in Sight.

A short time ago the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad experimented on rails which were composed of steel with copper alloy, and carrying with it the idea that rails made in this way would last longer, made in all ways give better service. Other roads took up the idea also, and the experiment has worked more or less good. The St. Paul road are quite confident that the new rails will be a great success, and they have ordered 50,000 tons to be used at once at Calumet, Michigan. One great advantage, which is being considered by railroad inspectors is that these rails will not be as liable to break from heat or cold. This alone would benefit the railroad companies, and would stand as a just reason for having these rails made, for each year many rails are cracked due to the extreme heat or cold, causing many wrecks. The St. Paul road expects to do great things with this new composition in the future, if it really proves to be more valuable than the old steel rails. It is doubtful that copper will remain the same price, now that some real valuable use has been put to it. If this rail proves a success, it will mean much to the mining districts, and also much to the business world. Large industries will be made greater, labor will be in demand more than ever before in the mining and steel plants, many more millions of pounds of copper will be sold annually, and the world will on the whole be benefited by this great new idea. The St. Paul road have purchased their first lot of copper, from the Lake Superior district, as this copper is the best, and will put the rails to the best test, as to its value and its results.

Will Ship in September.

The Vorden-Alten company of Milwaukee, who have given the contract by J. A. Roebeling Sons, whose copper wire plant is located at Dollar Bay, for the construction of a big building at their plant. The building is to be of steel construction, 208 feet long and 65 feet wide. It will be the principal building of the plant, which is the greatest and largest wiremaking plant in the world. The new building will be completed in September. The Dollar Bay plant is to be made the central point for the Roebeling company's western business.

The South Lake will begin shipping rock in September, and the construction of the rockhouse and crusher now under way, will be well completed before then. Shipments will come from openings down 300 feet. At the same time the new ground being opened shows up very much richer than was anticipated. Two spurs are being run into this mine by the Mineral Range railroad in anticipation of shipping.

Although Amberg paid $7 a share three months ago, a dividend of but $3 per share has just been declared for the last quarter. The building of the new mill and equipping of the old mill will cost $250,000. Two of these heads at once will require a large sum of money, hence the cut in the dividend. Of course, the drop from 17c to 15c per pound in the selling price of the metal has had something to do with the drop also.

Returns From Auto Trip: Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Colvin and Mrs. Min. Sutherland returned last evening from an automobile trip through Iowa, traveling as far as Sioux City where they spent some time. In all they journeyed over twenty-two hundred miles, and returned to Janesville. Mr. Colvin was much impressed with Sioux City and its activity and business.

Racine Chief Here: James Cape, chief of the fire department at Racine, called on Chief Klein yesterday afternoon.

Order Macadam: The council at an adjourned meeting yesterday afternoon ordered the paving with macadam of Vista avenue from Garfield avenue to a point 25 feet east of the east line of Logan street, and of Garfield street from Clark to Carrington street.

Gets Settlement: The claim of John Rayburn, son of Game Warden W. P. Mason, against the Lewis Knitting company for injuries to his foot and ankle received in an elevator accident March 19 has been settled for the sum of $1250. The money was paid over to W. P. Mason on the condition that he would assign the property of his son, W. S. Nolan, to the attorney for young Mason and Williams & Stern of Milwaukee represented the Fidelity & Deposit Company of Baltimore, with whom the Lewis Knitting Company carried liability insurance.

HIAWATHA BULLETIN

VOLUME I. NO. II.

JULY 12, 1913.

PURITY

The Pure Food Commission takes issue with Webster's definition of the word "Pure," declaring there is no comparative or superlative; that if a product is pure, it can be no purer and to declare the product "purest" is a misnomer.

The market is surfeited with so-called "pure" products. The public has so long suffered from the abuse of the word as generally used by unscrupulous and irresponsible manufacturers that to call an article "pure" has little significance.

HIAWATHA SPRING WATER and its products are not only "extraordinarily good" but BEST—utterly devoid of organic matter or germ life. Every drop of HIAWATHA is filled and bubbling with natural carbonic gas, the life, the sparkle, the radium, the health-giving properties so predominating, the mineral elements so evenly balanced as to produce a Natural Mineral Spring Water highly efficacious for table and hygienic uses.

Then may we not call your attention again to the absolute precautions taken to insure against every possible source of contamination during the process of bottling and delivering HIAWATHA? HIAWATHA Springs have every protection against surface drainage; all traces of vegetable matter have been removed tributary thereto; a cover over the main spring protects it from malicious destruction. Pure block tin pipes convey the water, thru a silver pump to the bottling plant where it is stored in pure glass enamel tanks and thence conveyed directly to the containers, through more block tin pipes, where it is sealed and never once does it come in contact with the air nor do human hands come in contact with it. All this is done for your protection—that we may deliver HIAWATHA to you, as it flows from the spring, absolutely PURE. In the future, when we refer to HIAWATHA as being PURE, understand that this means that it, literally, IS PURE. Do not let the indiscriminate use of the word by the general public detract from the meaning we wish to convey—PURE HIAWATHA—every drop gives you Vim and Life

Dr. G. B. Frankforter, Dean of the School of Chemistry University of Minnesota, says, after having made six different analyses of HIAWATHA, "I wish to state that the iron in this water, of which there is an appreciable quantity, remains in the solution perfectly which is an exceptional thing. Iron in small quantities has medicinal property, the only difficulty being to keep it in the solution. This water precipitated nothing except a very little calcium carbonate by standing in a warm laboratory for several weeks. This water is of exceptional purity with pronounced medicinal properties."

TRY THIS EXPERIMENT, if we can conduct an educational campaign and arouse sufficient interest that our citizens will give the subject of Pure Drinking Water more thought, the infinite good we will accomplish, tho we sell not a case of HIAWATHA, will be sufficient recompense. Draw a bath tub of city, water upon retiring. In the morning discharge it and wipe the sides of the tub with a white linen cloth—notice the sediment and how it covers the cloth. HIAWATHA IS PURE—no miles of common iron or galvanized pipe for it to flow through with no chance to sterilize. Our new booklet will explain the difference between spring and well waters. TO PAY FOR THE RIGHT KIND OF WATER IS NOT EXTRAVAGANCE BUT ECONOMY.

Since the first day of July we have delivered the equivalent of one carload of bottled HIAWATHA Water and Ginger Ale in Janesville. We expected a limited patronage at the start, knowing it would increase as people became acquainted with its merits. We were totally unprepared for the "right-off-the-bat" deluge and if our delivery has not been quite as satisfactory as you would wish, bear with us another week or two and we will leave no fault to find.

Let us again extend an invitation to you all to personally inspect HIAWATHA SPRINGS and Plant that you may see the machinery used in the process of collecting and bottling HIAWATHA water. The plant is in operation daily and you will enjoy seeing the bottles pass through the automatic sterilizer where they receive a prolonged immersion in a bath of hot sterilizing fluid which is strong enough to consume all forms of life and vegetable matter.

HIAWATHA, bottled at your very door, offered you locally at half the price of ordinary spring waters, was awarded gold medals at both the Columbian and St. Louis Expositions in competition with over 300 other well known spring waters.—Drink HIAWATHA and "Live years longer."

Within this column will be found a list of the Grocers Confectioners, Cafe, Drug and Cigar Stores and Hotels handling HIAWATHA and its products on this date.

The booster spirit has indeed been manifest among these dealers in taking on HIAWATHA. There is always an indication among live, wide-awake, up-to-the-minute dealers in desiring to give their customers QUALITY goods, and incidentally to support local institutions, if meritorious.

This booster spirit herein manifested is a mighty good criterion to go by in purchasing. There isn't a "back-number" dealer in the whole list above. If YOUR dealer doesn't happen to handle HIAWATHA, it is either because he is a "yesterday man" or because we have overlooked him (which isn't likely.)

Cut out this list of dealers,—their telephone numbers follow the names. You can't go wrong by phoning any one of them your order.

Hiawatha Ginger Ale

Now that HIAWATHA GINGER ALE is on the market we are desirous of comments from the general public. So far we have heard nothing but words of approbation. We believe our efforts to produce a pure Ginger Ale have been appreciated. We are well aware that Ginger Ale is much a matter of personal taste and judgment should not be passed too quickly.

The recognized medicinal value of Ginger Root used in the correction of stomach maladies has, no doubt, in years gone by, been brought to the mind of the reader when mother dosed you with Jamaica Ginger and sweetened water and put you to bed to forget the agony of too many green apples. The ingenuity of the Soda Water Bottler recognizing the value of Ginger Root, invented Ginger Ale which has become a standard drink with a large majority of the world's population.

Many bottling plants attempt to substitute material wholly with "ingenuity," which has resulted in many inferior Ginger Ales finding their way on the market. In such instances the Ginger Root has been substituted with Red Pepper (Capsicum) resulting in the finished product having more claim to the name of "Tobasco Soda" than Ginger Ale.

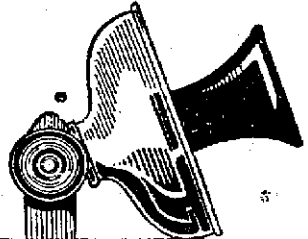

HIAWATHA Ginger Ale is made from pure Ginger Root extract, so pungently spicy, so delicately aromatic, so full of real flavor of Ginger Root with the added blend of Natural Fruit essences and phosphates that it slips down with a pleasant, satisfying, quenching smoothness and creates a wholesome sensation of perfect harmony within. We do not use artificial sweeteners, Corrosive acids, poisonous colors,—neither do we substitute Pepper for Ginger.

If some of you have been drinking "hot drops" for Ginger Ale, HIAWATHA may appear too mild. If the Ale you have been drinking is not so sweet, it is a simple matter to make it with less sugar. So send us in your comments,—do you want it hotter (red pepper is cheap.) Do you want it less sweet,—(we will gladly save the sugar.) Do you want foam on it—(we can make it look like soap suds with soap bark)—how do you want your Ginger Ale; we are here to please you and any way you may suggest will have our consideration. We may make three different kinds of ales to satisfy the idiosyncracies of various palates and will, if demand occasions it.

Sparkling Hiawatha

HIAWATHA enjoys the highest reputation as table water of indisputable merit; it has never been flamboyantly exploited as a panacea because, to those who have given the matter due consideration, it is manifest that as a water is free from organic impurities, filled with natural carbonic acid gas, impregnated with well-balanced quantities of mineral constituents, it is medicinal in its purity. In those disorders, arising from excessive eating and sedentary habits, it will manifest its remedial potency in a most convincing manner. The therapeutic action of HIAWATHA in diabetes mellitus is very clear, for the value of these alkaline bi-carbonate waters has been pointed out by no less an authority than Van Noorden, and special attention directed to the fact that the alkalinity of such mineral waters neutralizes the power of oxybutyric acid, which is one of the formidable factors of diabetes.

SPARKLING HIAWATHA, bottled and sealed at the spring, is simply the pure spring water as it flows from the ground to which a sufficient quantity of pure liquid carbonic acid gas is added to give it radiance, life, sparkle, effervescence and thus charged it exerts action on the stomach. It's good "the morning after"; it is highly beneficial in cases of nausea; it has a stimulating effect upon the kidneys and, above all, is pleasing to the taste. It cures "that brown taste;" relieves headache (caused by stomach disorders) and is a household necessity,—not a luxury. LOCK THE MEDICINE CABINET: DRINK HIAWATHA.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ON LOOKING AFTER YOU LEAP.

TWO MEN who had not had a great deal of social training were among the guests at a dinner where the paraphernalia of eating was extremely complicated, and neither of them had the least idea which fork to use for a certain course. One of them took up an implement, hesitated, laid it down and tried another. The other calmly took up a fork and used it. Now, it was the wrong fork. But as it happened the guests immediately about him were no better informed than he, and they at once followed his example.

So the first man was set down by observers as a social blunderer, and the second as a man who knew. And the reason was simply that while the first man vacillated from one decision to another, the second made up his mind and stuck to it.

Deliberation,—the habit of calmly weighing and measuring values before you choose, of looking before you leap, is a splendid quality, but indecision,—the habit of uncalmly weighing and measuring values after you have chosen, and of looking back after you have leaped, and perhaps trying to leap back again,—is the sign of a mind diseased.

If you want to succeed in life, you must learn to make up your mind to a thing and stick to it. He who hesitates is lost, is true in more than one sense.

Once in a while, of course, it is wise and necessary to back water, but for that once there are a hundred times when we weaken our cause, fail of success or spoil our chances of happiness by reversing a decision that has once been made.

"The thing we drivers have to fear most," an automobilist said to me the other day, "is these people who start to go ahead and then change their minds at the last moment. Half the people who get killed get it just that way."

Again, there was a terrible accident on a railroad crossing the other day in which a man and his wife were killed. It was a fatal crossing and the man did not see the train until his machine was on the track. He first tried to back the machine, then he changed his mind and tried to get across. If he had made up his mind quickly to do either thing, and stuck to his decision, he would probably have been alive today. But his mind was weakened by the disease of vacillation, and he paid the penalty of his weakness in a swift and terrible way. So, in both the big and the little things of life, vacillation is a dangerous habit, and the very best moment to fight it is the very moment you feel you are getting into its clutches.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two girls aged sixteen and nineteen years. (1) "R" is engaged to a young man, and recently he left to work in another city. His promise was, before he left her, that he would not keep company with other girls while he was away. Do you think he is keeping his promise? (2) How long should a boy and girl be engaged before they marry? (3) Should "R" go out with other fellows while her betrothed is away and she does not know what he is doing when away? (4) Would it be proper for her to visit his parents while he is away, since she knows them well? (5) "B" is sixteen years old and is in love with a man of twenty years. He wishes her to elope with him, but she knows that her parents would not approve of it. Do you think that she is old enough to follow her own heart? (6) She has heard that he is dishonest, but she cannot believe it because he has always acted like a perfect gentleman while in her company.

Forty Thousand Blue and Gray Veterans To Be Guests of Pennsylvania—How They Will Be Fed and Housed—Battlefield Now a Park—No North—No South—OUR Country.

IN 1909 the State of Pennsylvania decided to entertain the veterans of both armies on the fiftieth anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg, and a bill was passed by the State Legislature appropriating a certain sum for that purpose. At that time it was not known how many veterans would come, and in order to interest the old soldiers in different parts of the country the State of Pennsylvania asked the Governor of each State to appoint a Commission to represent his State, the Commission to include Confederate as well as Union men. This was done, and the greatest enthusiasm was aroused among the old veterans over the coming encampment. Meetings were held at Gettysburg from time to time by the Commissioners and the plans of entertainment formulated. Extra appropriations have been made until the sum has reached $415,000.00. This includes $150,000.00 from the War Department which is in charge of the camp. The immense amount of work required in preparing for the accommodation of the visitors can be readily understood when it is known that forty thousand old veterans are expected.

The work was under the direction of Major J. E. Normoyle, the Chief Quartermaster of the United States Army, but owing to the disastrous floods in the West Major Normoyle has spent very little time in Gettysburg, being compelled to give his time to relief work, and Major W. R. Grove, his assistant, and Captain H. L. Dalton, of the Quartermaster's Corps, have been in charge of the work at Gettysburg for several months. Their task, which at first appeared colossal, has been brought to a successful conclusion, and the advance guard of veterans have found everything complete.

The camp covers two hundred and seventy-eight acres and thirty more are available if it should be found necessary at the last minute to use more ground. A part of the land used is owned by the Government and other plots were leased from farmers. Captain Dalton arrived on the scene early in December. A month later Major Grove came. A house on

Baltimore Street in Gettysburg was rented and offices were opened. The plan of the camp was drawn up and poles were set up and telephones and electric light wires were strung. Over one hundred and fifty miles of trenches were dug and a sanitary sewerage system was put in. The regular army tents and furnishings are used—regulation army cots, basins, buckets, lanterns, etc. Five thousand of these tents have been put up, each containing eight cots—one for each man. Two lanterns, two washbasins and one bucket are furnished to a tent. The buckets are of the usual galvanized type, light in weight yet strong and durable; the washbasins are made of the same material. Pure water for the camp was obtained only after considerable labor—four wells being sunk, one of which is five hundred and one feet deep. A rigid analysis of the water has been made and the officers are satisfied that the water is pure. Several tanks, each holding fifty thousand gallons, were built to supply the numerous sanitary drinking fountains which are set up in camp. Sixteen hundred cooks will be required to prepare the food. They are, of course, working under the army cooks who will oversee this department. The bread is being baked at the regulation field bakeries which are set up at all encampments where the "regulars" are in charge. Rest stations have been erected in different parts of the field where the veterans who stroll about may rest or take shelter from the sun and rain. There is a large tent—in fact, the largest tent in the world, set up in a field near the scene of Pickett's charge where the different organizations will have their meetings and reunions.

The camp streets have been given to different G. A. R. Posts in the Union section, while in the Confederate plot the different United Confederate camps have been assigned to a certain section—that is, the men are in camp just as they were during the war. In a company so large there is sure to be some illness, and arrangements have been made to care for any who may be so unfortunate. A regulation army camp hospital has been erected where the best care will be given the veterans. It is in charge of army surgeons and hospital corps nurses. Twelve ambulances will be within call at all times. The camp is strictly for veterans and no outsider may eat or sleep in camp so the relatives who accompany the old soldiers must obtain quarters elsewhere, and owing to the limited number of accommodations of the town some will be at a premium during the encampment. The veterans are expected to bring their own towels, soap and toilet articles, everything else being furnished except their transportation to and from their homes. In several instances State appropriations have been made to cover this.

There will be special features for each day. July First will be known as Veterans' Day, when a number of reunions will take place; July Second will be Military Day, with drills and speechmaking; July Third will be Civic Day, all the Governors and their Adjutant Generals have been invited; July 4th will be National Day. Ex-President, William H. Taft, will make an address to the veterans, and after other patriotic speeches, the encampment will end with a magnificent display of fireworks at night.

The people of Gettysburg have always been intensely loyal, and the veterans have found the spirit of the town little changed since the war. Gettysburg has kept up with the times as a town, for she has several good hotels, fine public buildings, well stocked stores, up-to-date newspapers, well-kept streets and a trolley line running over parts of the battlefield. Houses showing bullet marks are to be seen on several of the streets. The owners of these houses love to display these evidences of the battle for in one of the new houses, which replaced an old one which had been struck by a bullet, appears the bullet in the same relative position with an American flag stuck up beside it to call attention to the fact.

The battlefield at present is a beautiful spot. It is easy of access, for it has a network of splendid roads. A large amount of money has been expended in replacing stone fences as they existed at the time of the battle and five and one-quarter miles of these have been rebuilt on the exact location of the old ones. Three hundred and twenty-four guns have been mounted, four hundred and sixty-two tablets have been erected and more than seventeen thousand trees planted. The trees are planted on ground that was covered with woods during the battle. Altogether more than a million dollars has been expended in monuments, tablets and roads on the field at Gettysburg—eighteen States contributing to the amount.

As far as possible, the lines of battle are marked and by following these the old soldiers who are already at the camp have found little difficulty in locating the position of their companions during the battle, and today they are walking or driving over the battlefield telling camp-fire stories and exchanging reminiscences of the days of '63. Many of the men are renewing old acquaintances with the Gettysburg folks.

A number of army officers who have inspected the camp pronounce it ideal in every way. There is, of course, a striking contrast in the camp of today and that of the Civil War, for new sanitary arrangements are used, comfortable cots and electric lights add to the comfort of the men, and good, fresh bread has taken the place of hardtack. It is only the tent life which reminds the old soldiers of the Civil War.

But the veterans are not coming to Gettysburg on the fiftieth anniversary to open old wounds, but to join hands for the common good of their native land, and the man from the South will cheer "Marching Through Georgia" with as much gusto as the Northerner will applaud the strains of "Dixie"—thus proving that sectional feeling has been wiped out.

"No North, no South, no alien now; Firm for one Cause, one Flag we stand. Hearts melted into sacred flame For God, and Home, and Native Land."

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By D. W. WATT

Many years ago with the Adam Forepaugh show there was an old gentleman by the name of Jerry Ferguson, who at one time was a half owner in the Van Amberg show, but as the saying goes the Van Amberg show "went on the rocks," and Mr. Ferguson and his partner lost their all. A few years after that Mr. Forepaugh came to the Forepaugh show and was kind of an assistant to Mr. Forepaugh around the front door, and while "Jerry" Ferguson, as he was known around the show, was an old man, he was a large man, fine looking and a good dresser and had a voice that you could hear all over the show. During the time that the crowds were coming into the show in the afternoon and evening, Mr. Ferguson would stand on a tall stool and talk to the people in a loud voice and tell them not to rush, to take their time, that there would be a chance for everybody.

Right back to Mr. Ferguson inside the laps of the menagerie stood the bird cages. There was an old parrot in the cage that went by the name of Pete. Pete was a great talker, and all the time that Mr. Ferguson would be pleading with the people not to rush, to take their time, that there would be a chance for everybody, old Pete would yell at the top of his voice for them to take their time, not to rush, that there would be a chance for everybody.

We were showing on the fair grounds in a town down in Ohio, the name of which I have forgotten, and the man that had charge of the bird cages had the cage open and was washing out the cage, and old Pete, who would often be set out on top of the cage while this work was going on. On this particular morning the man set Pete out on the corner of the cage while he did his work, and much to his surprise when he went to put Pete back he was not to be found. The man did not worry for a time thinking that Pete had just gone down into another cage, and went looking around the menagerie, but Pete could be found anywhere.

and darting down and back into the air again. By the time Mr. Forepaugh got right opposite them he thought he heard old Pete's voice.

He stopped and climbed over the fence into the corn field and as the crows were darting around, old Pete with his feet clutched fast around a corn stalk was yelling at the top of his voice, "Take your time! don't rush! There'll be a chance for everybody!" Hundreds of these crows had picked away at old Pete until many of his feathers were gone and in several places his back was bleeding, and yet he would yell out as they were picking him to pieces, "Take your time. Don't rush. There'll be a chance for everybody."

At Mr. Forepaugh's appearance the crows flew away and old Pete turned and saw his old friend coming and yelled out, "Hello Adam, where you goin'?" Mr. Forepaugh said, "Well, Pete, it don't look to me as though I had come any too soon."

Old Pete, in his arms, took him back to the menagerie and the man in charge of the bird cage took care of him, and it was several days before he got him doctored up again. And it is safe to say that old Pete was more than pleased to get back into his cage again among his friends.

The reception that was given to Mr. Forepaugh at the opening of his show in Chicago and at different times during their engagement must have been a grand sight to the old man. The Two Bills' Shows were here a nine days' engagement in Chicago Saturday afternoon, June 28th, to an audience which was remarkably large, considering the extreme heat which prevailed. The night house was excellent, although it was apparent that the hot weather had a tendency to reduce the attendance.

On July 2nd at noon the Hamilton Club entertained Pres. W. F. Cody, Major Gordon W. Little and executive officers of the Showmen's League of America at a luncheon in the clubhouse.

Wednesday afternoon, July 2d, at the Hotel La Salle, a suffragette breakfast was tendered to Pres. Gen. W. F. Cody of the Showmen's League by the ladies most prominent in bringing about the enfranchisement of women in Illinois. Gen. Cody was the only male guest.

Among those who gathered at the La Salle Bill peace box was at the La Salle were Elting, president of Chicago Association of Commerce; W. Rufus Abbot, secretary Industrial Club of Chicago; Guy Guernsey, president of the Hamilton Club; Wm. E. Appleton, president of Indiana Society of Chicago; and F. French, president of the Irish Fellowship Club; Capt. Hicock, adjutant general of the Department of Lakes; Virginia Brooks, settlement workers, and Nelson Lambert. Messages were read from Gov. Edward F. Dunne and Mayor Carter H. Harrison, expressing their sincere regrets in not being able to be present. Moving pictures were taken of the event, as well as several still photographs of General Cody, Mrs. Grace William Tront and the Indian chiefs smoking the pipe of peace, probably the most interesting group of pictures ever made.

The first year of the big hippodrome and the reproduction of General Custer's last battle, we had about one hundred Indians with the show. We were billed to show in Lowell, Mass., on Monday, and arrived there early Sunday morning. We were showing on the fair grounds and immediately after breakfast in the cook tent there were twelve of the Indians who started out looking for a place where they could secret themselves and have a quiet game of poker for the average Indian is a natural gambler. They soon spied the judges' stand, which was a building about fifteen feet square, and found it just unlocked, and they were soon in it with their blankets spread on the ground and the game was on.

Lowell at that time was closed down tight and the only thing that you were allowed to open there on the Sabbath was the Public House. After this the car of police with his hurry-up wagon and a couple of assistants went on the ground seeking who they might devour that belonged to the circus. While making their rounds over the show they took a peep in through a crack in the judges' stand and found the Indians playing poker. They soon backed up the wagon, broke in the door and arrested the twelve Indians and took them down to the city lock-up, the chief thinking he had made a fine capture.

He came back and notified Mr. Forepaugh that he had twelve of his Indians on arrest at the lock-up for gambling and asked him what he was going to do about it.

"Well," said old Adam, "I don't think there's very much for me to do." He said, "Young man, if I were you I would go down town and talk to the district attorney. These Indians are government subjects and I think after you have had an interview with your district attorney, if you can fix it up with the Indians so that they are satisfied, you had better bring them back."

The chief made a trip down town and had a conference with the district attorney, and in the course of an hour the Indians were all back to the fair grounds with a warning from the chief that they could not play poker in Lowell, Massachusetts.

While the Indians could all play poker, there were but few of them that could talk English. But they had quite a little to say about the big, and strong buildings they had seen and all seemed to have enjoyed their trip. This was the only arrest made of show people while we were in Lowell.

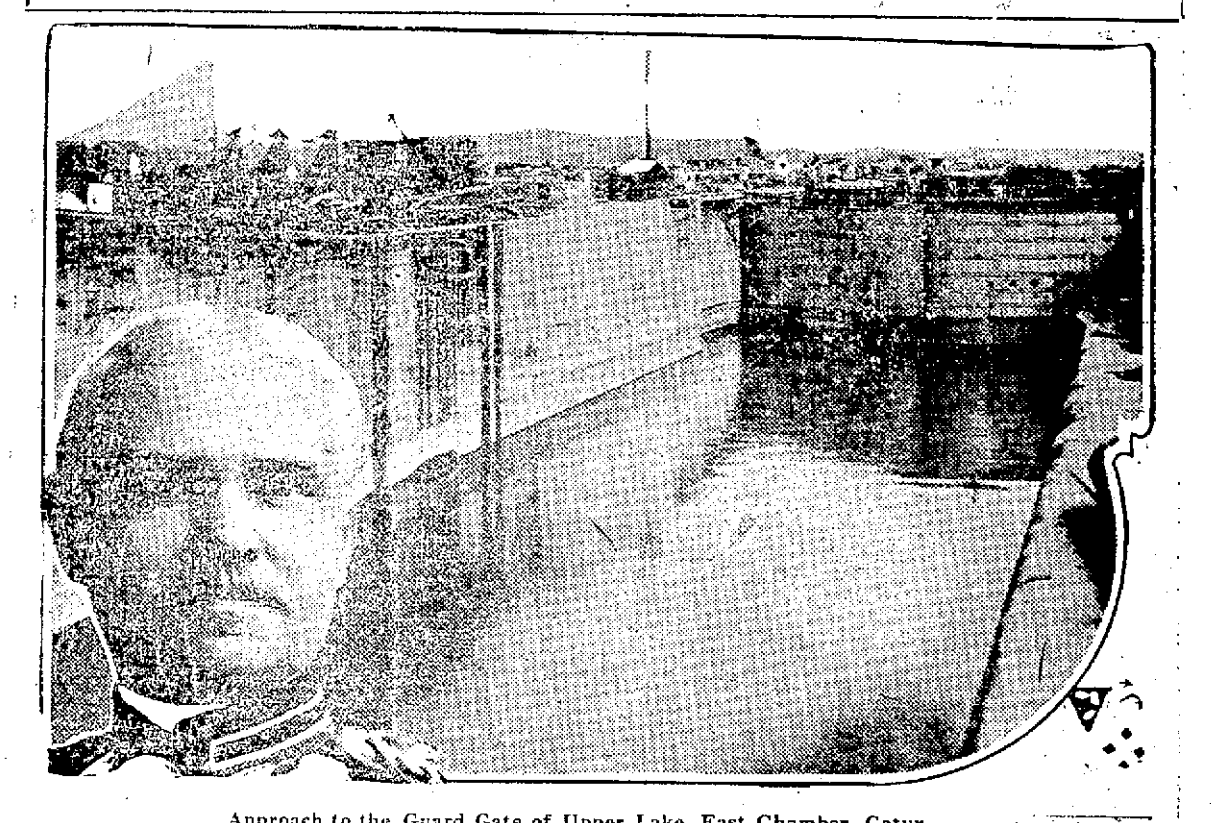

Courtesy is Love of Man. Courtesy. This is love in society, love in relation to etiquette. "Love doth not behave itself unseemly." Politeness has been defined as love in trifles. Courtesy is said to be love in little things. And the one secret of politeness is to love. Love cannot behave itself unseemly.—Henry Drummond.

THE SECRET OF LONESOME COVE

BY
SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

Author of
AVERAGE JONES, ETC.

"Chance?" murmured Kent interrogatively. The car swerved sharply, but immediately resumed the middle of the road. "Certainly, chance," said the motorist. "What else should it be?" "Of course," agreed Kent. "As you say, 'chance' continued the other, 'because you are I believe, the very man I want. There is an affair that has been troubling me a good deal. I haven't been able to look into it personally, because of the serious illness of my son, who is at my place on Sundayman's Creek. But it is in your line, being entomological, and perhaps criminal."

"What is it?" asked Kent. "An inexplicable destruction of our stored woollens by the clothes moth. You may perhaps know that I am president of the Kinsella Mills. We've been having a great deal of trouble this spring, and our superintendent believes that some enemy is introducing the pest into our warehouses. Will you take the case?"

"Start tonight for Connecticut," Chester Kent's long fingers went to the lobe of his ear. "Give me until three o'clock this afternoon to consider. Can I reach you by telephone?" "Yes, at Hedgerow House, my place."

"That is how far from here?" "Fourteen miles; but you need not come there. I could return to the city and conclude arrangements. And I think," he added significantly, "that you would find the project a profitable one."

"Doubtless. Are you well acquainted with this part of the country, Mr. Blair?" "Yes, I've been coming here for years."

"Is there an army post near by?" "Not within a hundred miles." "Nor any officers on special detail about?"

"None, so far as I know." Kent produced from his pocket the silver star with the shroud of cloth hanging to it. "This may or may not be an important clue to a curious death that occurred here three days ago."

"Yes, I've heard something of it," said the other, musingly. "I took it to be mostly gossip." "Before the death there was a struggle. This star was found at the scene of the struggle."

"The star looks like the star from the collar of an officer. I should say positively that it was from an army or navy uniform."

"Positiveness is the greatest temptation and snare that I have to fight against," remarked Chester Kent. "Otherwise I should say positively that no officer, going to a dubious rendezvous, would wear a uniform conspicuous. Are you yourself an expert in woolen fabrics, Mr. Blair?"

"I have been." "Could you tell from that tiny fragment whether or not the whole cloth is all wool?"

Without replying, Blair gave the steering handle a quick sweep, and the car drew up before a drug store. He took the star and was gone a few minutes.

"Not all wool," he announced on his return. "Exit the army or navy officer," remarked Kent.

"Why so?" "Because regulations require all wool garments—and get them. What is the fabric?"

"A fairly good mixture, from the very elementary chemical test I made. The thing in the nature of a wadded batiste. I should judge, from what I could make out under the inferior magnifying glass that they loaned me."

"Thank you, Mr. Blair. You've eliminated one troublesome hypothesis for me. I'll telephone you before three o'clock. Good day."

From the woolen manufacturer, Chester Kent went direct to the Martineau Center library, where he interviewed the librarian. "Do you get the Agriculture Department publications?"

"Yes." "Have you a pamphlet issued by the Bureau of Entomology, Helminthology and the Swarm Phenomenon in Lepidoptera?"

"Chance?" murmured Kent interrogatively. The car swerved sharply, but immediately resumed the middle of the road. "Certainly, chance," said the motorist. "What else should it be?" "Of course," agreed Kent. "As you say, 'chance' continued the other, 'because you are I believe, the very man I want. There is an affair that has been troubling me a good deal. "Yes." "Have you a pamphlet issued by the Bureau of Entomology, Helminthology and the Swarm Phenomenon in Lepidoptera?"

"Yes, sir. It was inquired for only yesterday by Mr. Blair."

"Ah, yes. He's quite interested in the subject, I believe."

"Chance?" murmured Kent interrogatively. The car swerved sharply, but immediately resumed the middle of the road. "Certainly, chance," said the motorist. "What else should it be?" "Of course," agreed Kent. "As you say, 'chance' continued the other, 'because you are I believe, the very man I want. There is an affair that has been troubling me a good deal. I haven't been able to look into it personally, because of the serious illness of my son, who is at my place on Sundayman's Creek. But it is in your line, being entomological, and perhaps criminal."

"What is it?" asked Kent. "An inexplicable destruction of our stored woollens by the clothes moth. You may perhaps know that I am president of the Kinsella Mills. We've been having a great deal of trouble this spring, and our superintendent believes that some enemy is introducing the pest into our warehouses. Will you take the case?"

"Start tonight for Connecticut," Chester Kent's long fingers went to the lobe of his ear. "Give me until three o'clock this afternoon to consider. Can I reach you by telephone?" "Yes, at Hedgerow House, my place."

"That is how far from here?" "Fourteen miles; but you need not come there. I could return to the city and conclude arrangements. And I think," he added significantly, "that you would find the project a profitable one."

"Doubtless. Are you well acquainted with this part of the country, Mr. Blair?" "Yes, I've been coming here for years."

"Is there an army post near by?" "Not within a hundred miles." "Nor any officers on special detail about?"

"None, so far as I know." Kent produced from his pocket the silver star with the shroud of cloth hanging to it. "This may or may not be an important clue to a curious death that occurred here three days ago."

"Yes, I've heard something of it," said the other, musingly. "I took it to be mostly gossip." "Before the death there was a struggle. This star was found at the scene of the struggle."

"The star looks like the star from the collar of an officer. I should say positively that it was from an army or navy uniform."

"Positiveness is the greatest temptation and snare that I have to fight against," remarked Chester Kent. "Otherwise I should say positively that no officer, going to a dubious rendezvous, would wear a uniform conspicuous. Are you yourself an expert in woolen fabrics, Mr. Blair?"

"I have been." "Could you tell from that tiny fragment whether or not the whole cloth is all wool?"

Without replying, Blair gave the steering handle a quick sweep, and the car drew up before a drug store. He took the star and was gone a few minutes.

"Not all wool," he announced on his return. "Exit the army or navy officer," remarked Kent.

"Why so?" "Because regulations require all wool garments—and get them. What is the fabric?"

"A fairly good mixture, from the very elementary chemical test I made. The thing in the nature of a wadded batiste. I should judge, from what I could make out under the inferior magnifying glass that they loaned me."

"Thank you, Mr. Blair. You've eliminated one troublesome hypothesis for me. I'll telephone you before three o'clock. Good day."

From the woolen manufacturer, Chester Kent went direct to the Martineau Center library, where he interviewed the librarian. "Do you get the Agriculture Department publications?"

"Yes." "Have you a pamphlet issued by the Bureau of Entomology, Helminthology and the Swarm Phenomenon in Lepidoptera?"

"Yes, sir. It was inquired for only yesterday by Mr. Blair."

"Ah, yes. He's quite interested in the subject, I believe."

BY WALT MASON

When man is in a broke condition he'd rather have some pious than forty tons of admonition or counsel high and wise. We like to help people living in want, in squalid herds, when help consists of merely giving a string of shining words. We like to HELPFUL COUNSEL send those words like rockets athwart the dismal night, the while we see that all our pockets are buttoned close and tight. We hear the needy cry and clamor, by dire misfortune vexed, and we distribute chunks of grammar and platitudes and text. If we back up these verbal capers by giving greens or trips, we want to see it in the papers, in doubleheaded type. We want to hear the bands playing "The Conquering Hero Comes," when we with alms and aid go straying among the hungry huns. But once in forty thousand acres we find the modest guy who takes a portion of his wages to give the hungry pie, who to the widow gives some liver, or sends of elm a cord, because he thinks the "dearful" is loved well by the Lord. The rest of us are fond of standing where crowds can see us, sure, and while reporters watch us handing chaste language to the poor.

"What is there to be seen there, since you've said there are no marks?" "The soil is very soft."

"Yes, there's a spring just back of us."

"I've got that part of the lesson by heart, I think."

"Use your brain on it, then. Some one designing to make you his target, has been in this thicket; been and gone, and left the place trackless. That some one was a keen soft-footed woodsman. Putting it in words of one syllable, I should say he probably had the racial instinct of the hunt. Does that flush any idea from the deep and devious coverts of your brain?"

"Racial instinct? Gansett Jim!" said "Beady" when he found tracks all over the place. I should have known it wasn't them. Finding nothing, I was naturally pleased."

"That's more than I am," retorted the other.

Having tried unsuccessfully various highly recommended receipts for dislodging selfish passengers from the coveted seats, the woman who swings from a strap in front of the sandy man tried talking to him. "My husband. As a peroration to her harangue she said impressively:

"If you James, should ever be pigskin enough to sit down where there was a woman in a car left standing, I would never speak to you again as long as I live."

The sandy man looked up then. "Lucky devil," he said. "Not many of 'em could purchase peace at that price."

During the South African war letters sent home by British soldiers had to pass through the hands of a censor. A certain private had sent four or five letters home, and portions had been obliterated by the censor and were illegible on their arrival at their destination. He decided to even the accounts with the censor, and at the foot of the next letter he wrote:

"Please look under the stamp?" At the censor's office the letter was opened and read as usual. The officer in charge spent some time in steaming the stamp from the envelope, but his feelings can be better imagined than described when he read these words:

"Was it arid to get off?"

Do the right thing at the right time. Act quickly in time of danger. In time of kidney danger Doan's Kidney Pills are most effective. Plenty of evidence of their worth.

Mrs. R. W. Phillips, Church St., Clinton, Wis., says: "I suffered for years from pains in the small of my back and limbs and often my body bled. My feet and ankles were swollen and I had puny spots beneath my eyes. Someone told me that the failure of my kidneys to remove the uric poison from my system caused my suffering. I tried various kidney medicines but was not helped until I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. Since using them I have enjoyed much better health. I trust that other kidney sufferers will follow my example and try Doan's Kidney Pills. I still take Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally when in need of a kidney medicine and I am always benefited. You may continue the publication of my former testimonial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Michigan in Summer

It termed the ideal vacation land and it would seem as if this were true, judging from the beautiful pictures of woods and streams illustrated in the booklet of the above title.

The many resorts of this state are described and illustrated and the book we believe, will be eagerly sought for by those planning a vacation in the northern woods.

A Thatched Roof Cottage—By John Henry Newson.

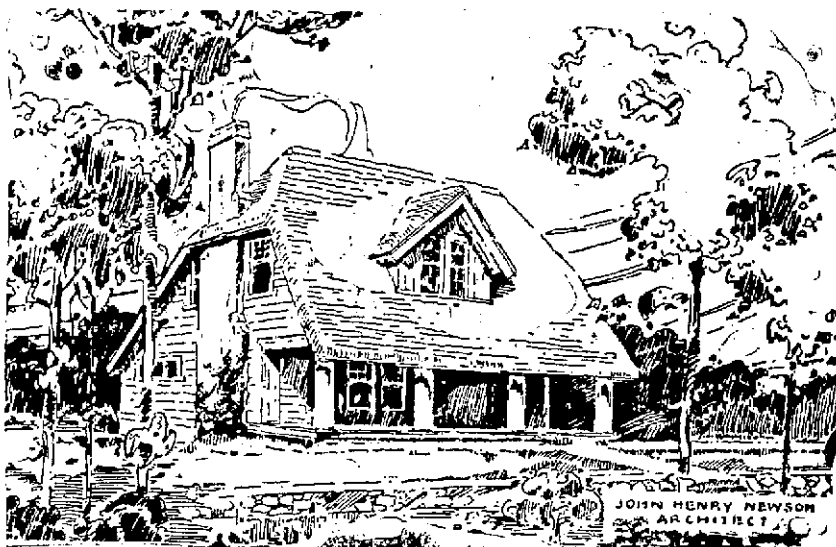

Home of Character No. 103

This Irish cottage with stained shingle roof, rounded eaves, giving a thatched effect, and wide clapboard or shingles over ordinary balloon frame, recalls pleasant memories of the "old country," and is eminently practical as an American home. The chimney is brick, or can be plastered if desired, and porch floor is cement, laid off in large squares.

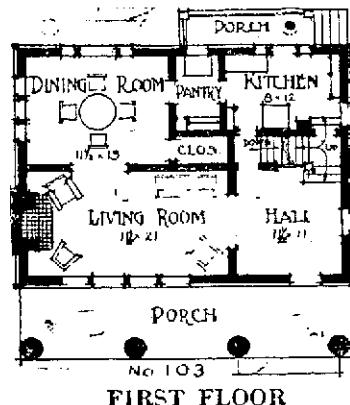

Full details and instructions for building the rounded eaves are given in the working plans and specifications.

The ground floor arrangement is simple and convenient, with combination stairs and access to basement from hall and kitchen. The large closet off the dining room can open off the rear hall if desired. The basement is built under entire house. Three bedrooms, bathroom and large storage room on second floor complete the plan.

Size 24x34 feet. Cost $320. Can be built for from $2500 to $4000.
